PERKINS HAS JOB

sale of manufacture of intoxicating liquors. A hot debate was expected.

Delegate Henry Allen of Kansas, seconded Cooper's amendment. Chairman

Robins pleaded with the delegates "not to allow their temporary enthusiasm to exceed their better judgment" and added that he hoped no speaker on either side would be sufficient.

Delegate Frank G. Curtis of New York, spoke for the prohibition plank, Curtis, however, at the end of his speech moved that the amendment be laid over for the time.

The convention rejected an amendment to the platform that would have endorsed an international court of arbitration.

Delegate Halbert of Minnesota, made the plan for the amendment.

Chairman Robins gave the "news" of the decision on the motion to lay the liquor amendment on the table and Henry J. Allen of Kansas, took the floor to speak for the "drys."

"I do not see how this platform is complete," said Allen, "without this plank on the greatest moral and economic question of the day in it."

"Some say it isn't politically wise to put the 'dry' plank in our platform. But this is the time to show our courage."

Allen was cheered to the echo when he concluded.

James R. Garfield of Ohio, spoke against the prohibition amendment.

"I regret it," he said, "but I must oppose this plank. Personally I am for prohibition. But I don't think we can handle this proposition unless we make it our single plank," he said. Garfield said the liquor question was one to settle through the slow, tedious work of education.

Garfield was given a minute's demonstration at the conclusion of his speech.

E. M. Etheridge of Texas, also spoke against the "dry" plank.

Plans were under way to delay the afternoon session by quibbling over the platform and other means available in order to hold the delegates in check while the conference committees were in session.

It's Roosevelt Or No One.

Many of the progressives this afternoon believed it was possible that Senator Borah had been sent to the progressive convention with the idea of testing out sentiment for him as a compromise progressive-republican for president.

Notice of Improvement of South Church Street

Notice is hereby given that the common council deem it expedient so to do, and hereby declare its purpose and intention to improve South Church street from the south line of State street to the north line of Mission street, except that portion there occupied by the church at the corner of the block at Church street bridge extending from the north line of Oak street to the north line of the western extension of Bellevue street, at the expense of the abutting and adjacent property by bringing said portion of South Church street to the official grade, constructing cement concrete curbs and paving said portion of said street with a six-inch, two-course bituminous concrete pavement, consisting of a one and one-half inch bituminous concrete wearing surface laid on a four and one-half inch bituminous concrete base in accordance with the plans, specifications and estimates for the improvement of said portion of South Church street, adopted by the common council on the 5th day of June, 1916, now on file in the office of the city recorder which for a more detailed description thereof are hereby referred to and made a part of this notice; being that character or kind of improvement known and designated in said plans, specifications and estimates as "Bituminous Concrete Pavement No. 5."

The common council hereby declares its purpose and intention to make said improvements and specifications by and through the Street Improvement Department of the city.

By order of the common council, Chas. F. Elgin, City Recorder.

Dated this 5th day of June, 1916, Jael.

ident. Other progressives said that the phrase "we want Teddy" was hurled so loudly at Borah that he would necessarily be convinced that he had not a chance with the progressives for the presidency.

When Chairman Perkins reached the Auditorium he said he had been in telephone conference with Colonel Roosevelt throughout the day.

The convention reconvened for the afternoon session at 3:14 p. m. with the galleries well filled.

Rev. W. E. Barton of the First Congregational church, Chicago, rendered the invocation.

At 3:22 the convention took up the work of finishing consideration of the platform.

The Morning Session.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The progressive peace committee made the following report to the convention today:

"The Progressive National Convention:

"Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session met in conference with the committee representing the national republican convention last evening. The committee of conference representing the republican national convention consists of Messrs. Reed Smoot, Murray Crane, William E. Borah, Nicholas Murray Butler and A. R. Johnson.

"The conference was most friendly. Immediately upon assembling your committee proposed as the joint nominee of both conventions, the name of Theodore Roosevelt. The committee representing the republican national convention did not present the name of any candidate, nor did it attempt to refute our arguments relating to the unique availability of Theodore Roosevelt as a candidate to unite both parties or serve our common country at this crucial period in the history of the world.

"After several hours of friendly discussion during which no concrete proposition was advanced, by the republican conference, except that of further conference might be desirable this afternoon or evening, the joint committee adjourned.

(Signed) "George W. Perkins, Hiram W. Johnson, Charles J. Bonaparte, John M. Parker, Horace M. Wilkinson."

Grains and Hisses.

Only slight applause followed Perkins' reading of the report. He then read the report the republican conference made to their convention.

The delegates, misconstruing the republican conference report as read by Perkins, cheered wildly until they learned it was in quoting the progressive report that the republicans spoke of unanimity on Roosevelt.

They hissed and groaned as the republican report was read again and they learned the republicans had said nothing for Roosevelt themselves.

Commenting on the report, Perkins said:

"Our national committee, in January, made the statement it did for two purposes—first, to reach, if possible, an agreement with the republican convention, now in session, and secondly, to build up a position so strong that the public would unquestionably stand with us. The results of the work we do in the next four or six hours will be as momentous as any in any great military engagement.

"The situation shifts rapidly. We must do nothing to mar our record, so far I think perfect, to injure us with the people, with the people, if we short-go to them for their support. We want to be in a position so strong that all the world will be with us."

Pleds for More Time.

"As chairman of your conference committee I now ask you to thrust us for a short time longer. We will report to you every quarter of an hour if necessary and keep you fully informed. Will you do this?"

Governor Johnson of California, in the midst of a great demonstration, was introduced.

"There is little I can add to Mr. Perkins' report," Johnson said. "There is no one great confidence in the reports made by the republican committee to their convention. The republicans accept the issue as we make it, and acknowledge they have no man so fit to meet the issue as Theodore Roosevelt."

Albert Russell Hart of Boston, leaped to his feet and demanded assurance that the progressives "insurance policy would not expire too soon" under the agreement for conference.

Henry J. Allen of Kansas, told the convention that the republicans had continued their conference committee existence and that the crowd in the gallery at the Coliseum cheered the mention of Roosevelt's name.

Former Attorney General Bonaparte of Baltimore, another member of the conference committee, corroborated Johnson's statement.

Parker Not Optimistic.

John M. Parker of Louisiana, declared he did not feel that the progressives "could get very far" with those gentlemen. He said the progressives should be ready to nominate Roosevelt at any time. Work of adoption of the platform was resumed.

Mrs. E. M. Rhodes of Seattle, moved an amendment to the preparedness clause eliminating the word "male" and substituting "every citizen" is charged with the duty of defending the country.

by O. E. Purdy who seeks to recover money alleged due for the erection of cottages at Newport for Reifner. In the answer, Reifner declares that the work done by Purdy resembles the work of a "lumber butcher" rather than that of a carpenter. In fact, declares the defendant, he has had to finish the work he hired Purdy to do and pay for it out of his own pocket.

Said to quiet title to a portion of the old Hall place, south of this city, has been instituted by Charles D. Schmid against A. Taylor, who at present is in possession of the land.

Complaint was filed today in the circuit court by Albert Grinde against C. Howell asking recovery of $712 said to have been advanced by Grinde to enable Howell to retain possession of a threshing outfit.

The M. Runley company, according to the complaint, threatened to take Howell's outfit unless money alleged due on it was forthcoming. Grinde says he came to Howell's aid and saved the outfit, taking a bill of sale as security for the loan. Later, avers the plaintiff, Howell mortgaged the threshing apparatus to E. O. Eoff as security in payment of an individual note for $250. Gustav Ross of Silverton is attorney for Grinde.

The county court is spending the afternoon hearing arguments for and against the opening of a county road near McKee station. A delegation of twenty farmers and taxpayers is in attendance at the court house.
